

RETIRED CERTIFICATION STATUS FORM

If you are a DBIA -certified professional (DBIA™ and Assoc. DBIA™) who has retired from design-build work in a professional capacity, you may request that a "retired" status be designated on your certification records. Your certification(s) will then be left in good standing and will not lapse or be deleted from your certification records.

- If you meet the requirements and desire Retired Certification Status, you may apply up to one year before and after your certification expiration date(s).
 - Retired members shall use the credential "DBIA™-Retired" or "Assoc. DBIA™-Retired."
 - Retired credential holders are not required to collect and submit the 24 hours of CEUs or recertify by exam to retire their certification.
 - Certification will be left in "good standing" and will not lapse and be deleted from our records (in case they wish to reinstate it).
 - Credential holders will receive a new certificate ID card that will no longer have an expiration date, but will show "retired."
1. Submit your application payment directly to: Design-Build Institute of America, Attn: Certification, 1331 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, 4th Floor, Washington DC 20004.
 2. If you hold Retired Status and wish to return to active full- or part-time employment, you must contact the DBIA Certification Department to reinstate your certification to ACTIVE status. Your date of reinstatement will be your new start date for your two-year recertification period. You will then receive a new "active" status wallet card(s) along with a recertification information and may begin accruing the required 24 CEUs to recertify every two-year cycle.
 3. You are not required to submit a renewal form or recertify by exam to retire or reinstate your certification(s).

There is no fee to reinstate your certification(s).
